Means-tested Benefits

Pension Credit (PC)

PC can be paid on its own or on top of other benefits to bring a household's income up to a minimum amount. It has two distinct parts: a 'Guarantee Credit' for those aged QAPC and over, and a 'Savings Credit' for those aged 65 and over, who are not receiving nSP. It is possible to receive one or the other or both and the first £10,000 of capital is ignored. If someone receives Guarantee Credit then they are also entitled to full eligible Housing Benefit and Council Tax Support, regardless of the amount of their capital or income.

Guarantee Credit from QAPC - (In a couple at least one QAPC)
Minimum guarantee	Single	£167.25
	Couple	£255.25
Additional amounts	Severe disability addition	£65.85 (per disabled person)
	Carer's addition	£36.85

	Couple	£229.67
Savings credit maximum	Single	£13.72
	Couple	£15.35
Capital limits	Lower	Upper
Standard	£10,000	No upper limit
Care home	£10,000	No upper limit

Notional income of £1.00 a week for each £500 or part of capital exceeding the lower limit.

Housing and Council Tax Benefits

Housing Benefit / Council Tax Reduction (HB/CTR)

Council Tax Support provides help with Council Tax costs. This is a scheme which has been devolved to local councils in England and to the governments in Wales and Scotland. For people above QAPC the scheme is very similar to the previous Council Tax Benefit scheme but for people below that age in England there are local schemes which can be very different. You should get details from the appropriate council. The figures below refer to Housing Benefit although they will also apply, in most cases, to CTS.

There is an upper capital limit of £16,000, which can be lower in some English local authorities. Those with capital above this figure will not be entitled, unless they are entitled to the Guarantee Credit element of Pension Credit

Benefit Changes and Notes 2019

Qualifying Age for Pension Credit (and many other entitlements)

State pension age for women has been increasing since April 2010 and has now reached 65. This age is also known as the "Qualifying Age for Pension Credit" (QAPC). It determines entitlement to Pension Credit (PC) and all other means-tested entitlements which were previously available from age 60."

From March 2019 the State Pension age for both men and women will start to increase to reach 66 by October 2020, to 67 between 2026 and 2028 and to 68 subsequently. The Cridland report in early 2017 recommended that the increase to 68 should happen between 2037 and 2039.

The QAPC in April 2019 is 65 years and 2 months.

Pension Credit entitlement for couples

From 15th May 2019 PC will no longer be payable, for new claims, when the older of a couple reaches QAPC but only when the younger partner also reaches that age. These mixed-age couples will now have to claim Universal Credit which pays much lower rates of benefit. From April 2016 people over QAPC but with partners who are younger have not been able to claim Savings Pension Credit if they hadn't claimed it earlier.

Pension Credit Changes

Child amounts have been included in PC from 1st February 2019. There is no limit on the number of children in a claim, unlike the 2 child limit in working age benefits.

There is a different form of PC for people receiving the new state pension (nSP) since April 2016. They do not qualify for Savings Pension Credit (SPC). Existing pensioners on the basic state pension (bSP) will still be able to receive SPC. Both types of pensioner will still be able to receive Guarantee Pension Credit (GPC).

Assessed Income Periods (AIP), when most increases in income or capital had no effect on PC, are being abolished. No new AIPs have been created since April 2016 and existing fixed period ones will stop by 28 March 2019. Indefinite AIPs, for older people, will continue to apply.

From April 2019 the maximum amount of SPC has been increased, by 32p a week for a single person and 36p for a couple, but the threshold figure, at which people qualify, has again increased, which will reduce the amount of SPC entitlement.

When Universal Credit is fully rolled out, Housing Benefit will be abolished. In order to ensure that PC claimants continue to get help with rent, a new housing component for PC will be created. This will mirror HB.
